Totalitarianism Totalitarism, species of the most general category of authoritarian regulations [1] are normally characterized, in extreme synthesis, by the absence of a plurality of parts, presence and immanence of a single party, a leader or a restricted summit oligarchy, of the non-existence of restrictions or limits, formal and substantial, to power, elimination, even violent, of any form of dissidence, subordination or enslavement of any sociopolitical body, potentially competitor [1] , of the personalization of power and charisma[5]. With the decrees of February 28, 1933, Hitler raised the basis of the totalitarian state and, with the law on full powers, from the personal dominance of him [10]. Loescher, 1982.
